Prizes Details:

The Arte Laguna Prize 2026 continues to strengthen its global network of excellence by offering among its Special Prizes a residency at BigCi | Bilpin, Australia — an internationally respected artist residency immersed in the natural landscape of the Blue Mountains region.

BigCi (Bilpin international ground for Creative initiatives) is renowned for its commitment to supporting research-driven and environmentally engaged artistic practices. Located within a UNESCO-listed natural area near Sydney, the residency offers artists the rare opportunity to work in close dialogue with nature while remaining connected to Australia's vibrant cultural scene.

The Special Prize consists of a fully supported residency period at BigCi, providing accommodation, studio space, and the time necessary to focus on artistic research and production in a unique ecological context. The residency encourages experimentation, interdisciplinary exchange, and critical reflection, fostering meaningful connections between art, environment, and community.

For the selected artist, this opportunity represents far more than a residency: it is an immersive professional experience that allows for deep creative development, international networking, and engagement with global environmental discourse. Working in such a distinctive landscape offers new perspectives and inspiration that can significantly influence the direction of an artist's practice.

Through partnerships with prestigious institutions such as BigCi, Arte Laguna Prize reaffirms its mission to actively support artists' professional growth and international visibility. By offering concrete opportunities — including residencies, exhibitions, collaborations, and awards — the Prize stands out as one of the most dynamic and forward-looking platforms in the contemporary art world.

Arte Laguna Prize 2026 once again confirms its role as a bridge between emerging and established artists and leading cultural institutions worldwide, opening doors to transformative experiences capable of shaping the future of artistic careers.
